Rob Thomas is a funny, affable person both on and off the stage. As an act he has a warm, everyman charm that audiences can't help but warm to, and as an organiser he has such extensive experience from the comedy circuit you can't help but feel reassured.

We went to him with little more than a dream of putting on our first comedy night, but he brought humour, passion and his extensive range of contacts to the table and helped to make a show better than we could have hoped for, selling out the Leicester Square Theatre and getting great reviews.

Rob remains calm and level-headed in all situations - it's a true testament to him that when an act had to pull out less than 20 minutes before one of the shows started, he not only got a replacement, but an award-winning replacement with many TV credits to his name, saving the night.

From organising an evening, getting a crowd onside, or getting them rolling with laughter, I'd have no hesitation at all in recommending Rob.
